GREEN BAY - The American Foundation of Counseling Services selected 12 finalists from among 80 entries for its 2016 Ethics in Business Awards.

Now in its ninth year, the association recognizes one business, one nonprofit organization and one individual that demonstrate excellence in business, integrity, accountability and responsible citizenship. The foundation established the awards to bolster ethical integrity in Northeastern Wisconsin, raise awareness of the foundation to raise money for the foundation's mission.

The individual finalists are: Associated Bank's Denis Hogan, former Brown County Board Supervisor Allan Jamir, Howe Neighborhood Family Resource Center's Toni Loch and community leader Kathy Pletcher.

The business finalists are: Denmark State Bank, Hillcrest Homes, Foth & Van Dyke and Koehler Flooring.

The nonprofit finalists are: The Aging & Disability Resource Center, Bellin Health, Cerebral Palsy Inc. and the NEW Community Shelter.

The finalists will go through several months of review and evaluation before the winners are announced at a Nov. 10 lunch event at the KI Convention Center.
